

HOUSE APPROVES CASH BONDS MEASURE, 356 TO 59; SCHEME FOR PAYMENT FROM RELIEF FUNDS REJECTED

SOVIET DEFENSES TO BE INCREASED TO MEET THREATS

"Aggressive Intentions of Japan and Germany" Necessitate Larger Military Force, Russian Premier Announces.

LEADER STRESSES FOREIGN MENACE

Poland and Italy Also Are Named by Molotoff in Speech Before Central Executive Body.

MOSCOW, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Soviet Russia, one of the world's strongest military powers, frankly announced an even greater rearmament program tonight because of "the aggressive intentions of Japan and Germany."

Vyacheslav Molotoff, who is premier through his office of president of the council of commissars, disclosed the far-reaching military plans in a brilliant address to the all-union central executive committee, meeting in the Kremlin. Among his audience was Joseph Stalin.

Russia now has an army 1,000,000 strong and thousands of airplanes and tanks, but Molotoff said more must be done.

Recent Russian press reports of a secret alliance between Japan and Germany, he asserted, "came as no surprise so far as we are concerned."

Both nations, he pointed out, have left the League of Nations, and both, he charged, "have aggressive intentions."

Military Camp. "Germany," said Molotoff, "is literally a military camp which is situated at its center and endangers the whole of Europe. The axis are getting ready to strike."

"It has become most essential that we put our defenses on the highest attainable plane," the official continued. "This must add greatly to the military budget."

"We must see that the entire army—aviation, artillery, tanks, etc.—knows its job thoroughly and is prepared to act with the highest efficiency."

Poland was included by Molotoff among Russia's potential aggressors. He asserted Warsaw has ambitions to expand into the Baltic states.

The Soviet union, he continued, "is interested primarily in a defense of its peaceful work of building socialism. We have destroyed our landlords and bankers and we have created a new industry and a new people and we are stronger and better—and yet certain peoples plan to attack us."

He wound up with what was interpreted by the audience as a warning: "The old world must make way for the new."

Calling attention to the fact that a Russian proposal of three years ago for a non-aggression treaty with Japan is still unaccepted, Molotoff accused the Japanese of permitting friction with the Soviet union to deflect the world's attention from military operations in North China. He said Tokyo also had ignored repeated Russian suggestions for the creation of a mixed commission to settle the causes of boundary disputes.

He criticized Italy as an "imperialistic aggressor" and sharply attacked the League for "having done nothing to warn her (Italy) against her present act."

Referring briefly to Uruguay's recent action, he said:

Morgan Denies New York Bankers Influenced U. S. Entry Into War

Financial Baron, in Stand at Munitions Quiz, Refuses To Admit Firm 'Put on Heat' To Force Purchase of British Bond Issue.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—In a vociferous battle of accusation and denial, J. P. Morgan grudgingly fought it out today with the senate munitions committee on the insistence of senators that his firm influenced a change in Woodrow Wilson's neutrality policy permitting big loans to the allies.

Equally sharp was an interchange over a charge that the house of Morgan "put the heat on American manufacturers" who were selling war supplies to have them purchase a slow-moving issue of British war-time bonds.

Repeatedly the ponderous baron of finance raised a remonstrating hand and thundered his indignation as Senator Clark, democrat, Missouri, persistently pounded away during the day at a contention that Morgan and his men precipitated a panic in the foreign exchange market to achieve the Wilson neutrality shift.

"I deny that," Morgan said. "There have been direct accusations that the New York bankers brought on the war," he thundered. "I want to deny that."

Taking it that the good name of his great banking house was under attack, the financier's demeanor underwent an abrupt change. For three days he had sat placidly, laughing at the heated exchanges between Thomas W. Lamont, a Morgan partner, and committee members, smoking incessantly and always lounging back in his chair.

Today the pipe remained in his pocket. He leaned forward with earnest intensity, ready to combat now with a quip, now with a grave denial imputations that his firm would engage in such practices as the committee members attributed to it.

At his right was Lamont, George Whitney, another partner, leaned over their shoulders to add his own barbed denials. Mrs. Whitney, in black as-trachan, sat among the spectators, adding emphasis to her husband's remarks with vigorous nods of her head.

In line with its efforts to solve present neutrality problems by trying to gauge the extent commercial relations with the allies was a factor in shoring America into the war brought out: "Contraband" Material.

That at the outset of European hostilities, William Jennings Bryan, the secretary of state, ruled out loans and credits to belligerents as "the worst sort of contraband."

200 TO 300 PERISH AS QUAKE STRIKES COLOMBIAN TOWNS

Landslides Bury Men, Women and Children in One Hamlet; Entire Villages Are Destroyed.

BOGOTA, Colombia, Jan. 10.—(AP)—A destructive earthquake, followed by landslides which swallowed up villages, killed between 200 and 300 persons in southwestern Colombia, dispatches said tonight.

A much greater death toll was feared. A widespread area was affected and it is heavily populated.

More than 200 men, women and children were buried alive in one hamlet alone, dispatches reported, that of La Chorrera, in the vicinity of Turquias. The village was obliterated.

The violent earthquake last night shook all of Narino department, dispatches from Pasto, the capital, said.

At least 36 persons were killed in the towns of Turquias and the villages of Sapuyes, Alban and Pinzon were destroyed. Landslides followed the quake.

Further details were lacking because communication lines throughout the affected area were disrupted.

Immediately to send aid to the distressed. Minister of Industries Martinez will leave by airplane early tomorrow for Pasto to direct relief work.

The scene of the earthquake is in western Colombia, near the border of Ecuador. More than 50 persons were killed by an earthquake in that area last August.

Pasto, capital of Narino province, is a village famed for its manufacture of Panama hats.

DR. JOHN CONDON LEAVES COUNTRY AS COURT MEETS

Intermediary in Lindbergh Kidnaping Case and Daughter Board Ship for Latin America.

By DONALD C. BOLLES.
(Copyright, 1936, by Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Dr. John F. (Jafie) Condon, star witness for the state in the conviction of Bruno Hauptmann for the kidnaping of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., boarded the S. S. Santa Rita late today, bound for Latin America.

Declaring his part in the famous kidnaping case was ended, "Jafie" added that he was seeking a rest and would be away indefinitely.

Even as he boarded the ship his name again entered the case.

Governor Hoffman, of New Jersey, who tomorrow will sit with other members of the state court of pardons to hear Hauptmann's plea to save himself from death in the electric chair next week, announced he had requested a magazine to forward him the manuscript of a recent article by Dr. Condon in which he purportedly "told all" about the kidnaping and murder case.

"I believe it is highly important," said the governor, who declined to give any further explanation.

Other Figures Away.
The departure of Dr. Condon followed within the short space of several weeks the exodus of some other principal figures in the Lindbergh drama.

They now comprise a small "foreign colony." First, Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh.

Gomez Claims Victory in Election As Rioters Shower Bombs at Polls

"I Carried Every Province," Former Mayor Declares; Two Persons Killed in Election Fights; Women Crowded To Cast Ballot for First Time Under New Decree.

HAVANA, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Cuba bated for a president in an election marked by sporadic bloodshed and bombings today. Two hours after the polls closed Miguel Mariano Gomez, former mayor of Havana, claimed victory.

"I carried every province," said Gomez, a coalition party candidate. But his optimism was not borne out by the early count which showed him only 271 votes ahead of Mario Menocal in 44 of Cuba's 5,117 precincts. The vote was: Gomez 3,717, Menocal 3,446.

At least two persons were killed in gun fights and a series of bomb explosions in Santiago injured a dozen.

One person was slain and two wounded in an election fight at Guantamayo, Camaguey province. A Guantamayo policeman shot and killed a civilian who fled when ordered to halt near a polling place.

Friends reported Manuel Perez Galian, a candidate for representative in Pinar del Rio province, has disappeared. He was believed kidnapped.

Women, given the right to vote and hold public office for the first time under a decree issued during the provisional presidential period, flocked to the polls.

In some places female voters outnumbered men. There was one woman a candidate for the senate while several ran for the house of representatives.

An unconfirmed report early tonight said former President Mario G. Menocal had polled a larger vote than most political observers had expected, and that Miguel Mariano Gomez, former mayor of Havana, who had generally been expected to be elected president, apparently had a hard battle on his hands.

Gomez and Menocal were the only candidates generally conceded a chance of election, since the other, Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, former provisional president, put up no campaign fight.

Ten bombs exploded in Santiago before the polls opened, one of them damaging the office of Dr. Cesar Cacho Cacho, a leader of the Marianistas (Gomez's party).

A business block in the small hamlet of Marti, Matanzas province, was burned after a fire set fire to a voting place.

A few shots were fired into the air near one of the voting places in Havana to disperse a crowd, but no one was injured.

At the town of Ciego de Avila, in Havana province, a man was wounded in a fight after one faction accused another of buying votes. In another dispute at the town of Sibanicu, Camaguey province, a man was hurt.

PATMAN TO CARRY FIGHT TO SENATE; BOND PLAN URGED

Vinson-Patman-McCormack Bill Would Make Adjusted Service Compensation Certificates Redeemable at Once.

LEADERS CHEERED BY THEIR SUCCESS

Battle Still Looms Over Legislation To Produce Necessary Money for Carrying Out Program.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—A boisterous house shouted approval of a cash payment bonus bill today, tossing the 1936 battle over the perennial issue into the lap of the senate.

Even as the measure sped unsmothered through the house on a 326 to 59 vote—more than enough to override a veto—efforts to change its form were in the making at the other end of the capitol.

Democratic senate leaders, seeking some form that might find assured presidential approval, were reported to be negotiating for veteran support for bonus payment in bonds and redeemable in cash on demand.

Chairman Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, called a meeting of the senate finance committee Monday to consider the bonus. The major veterans' organizations are backing the house bill.

No Definite Payment.
The Vinson-Patman-McCormack measure passed today provides no definite method of payment. It would declare veterans' adjusted service certificates payable immediately, but would offer three per cent interest until 1945 for former soldiers who retained from cashing them.

The anxiety and tenseness of earlier bonus fights was gone today as the house passed the bill. Jovial and chatty members came to the floor and cast their votes. Speaker Byrnes repeatedly had to pound for order and finally admonish them to remain in their seats, stop a rumble of conversation and quit parading about the chamber.

Packed galleries—in violation of the rules—joined in a salvo of applause when the measure passed. The bill had carried. Officials of the veterans' organizations smiled down from rear seats in the members galleries.

National Commander James E. Van Zandt, of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, called the vote a "complete answer to the miserable minority which has blocked decisive action on this legislation for years."

The legislation after almost 3,500,000 former World War soldiers, its backers claim approximately $1,000,000,000 will be needed at once to pay off their certificates, but that figure has been described by foes of the bill as much too low.

Still remaining to be fought out is the matter of where or how to obtain the cash. Representative Patrick, democrat, Texas, who wants to pay the money with currency issued against government gold, told reporters:

"We are going to carry our fight now to the senate. When the time comes, the battle over method of payment can be picked up again."

Patrick's office said that three of the veterans' organizations (the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Disabled American Veterans) were not going to throw obstacles in the path of his method of payment. Those same organizations

Cobb Says: Solons Make Good Midgets

By IRVIN S. COBB.
(Copyright, 1936, by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

WESTWOOD HILLS, Cal., Jan. 10.—You remember what happened the time before this when J. P. Morgan appeared at Washington to tell a senatorial investigating committee how patriotism might be combined with profits in such a way as not seriously to damage either? A sideshow midget came and nestled in his lap.

If, on the present visit, Mr. Morgan craves a repetition of that gladsome incident, I can think of 50 members of the house, not to mention many office-holders, any one of whom could play that Lilliputian role, and nobody would notice the difference. Both midgets and congressmen seem to be running to the smaller sizes these times.

'Editor and Publisher' Commends Safety Campaign of Constitution

Editor and Publisher, the newspapermen's own publication, in the current issue commends The Constitution for the energetic work of its Safety Council in attempting to reduce the annual toll of death and injury from traffic accidents.

The article, entitled "Safety Drive Localized Urged," describes the work done by The Constitution and other leading newspapers of the country in campaigns to bring about safer and saner driving.

Says the Editor and Publisher: "In the deeper south, The Atlanta Constitution has been the focal point from which a state-wide automobile safety drive has been operated with marked success in recent months."

Rep. Hoeppel and Son Sentenced to Prison

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Representative John H. Hoeppel, California democrat, and his son, Charles, were sentenced today to serve from four months to one year in jail for conspiring to sell a West Point appointment for $1,000 to James W. Ives, of Baltimore.

Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue, of the District of Columbia supreme court, allowed the defendants to remain at liberty on $1,000 bonds each, however, pending an appeal.

The court passed sentence immediately after overruling defense motions for arrest of judgment and a new trial. The Hoeppels were convicted a month ago by a district court jury.

CONDON AND DAUGHTER SAIL FROM NEW YORK

bergh and her son, Jon, slipped away from New York and are now in Wales, England. Mrs. DeWitt Morrow, mother-in-law of the colonel, and her daughter, Constance, are also in England.

The 75-year-old former Bronx school teacher was accompanied by his pretty daughter, Mrs. Mary Condon Hacker, wife of Ralph Hacker, New Jersey architect, who followed her father on the witness stand at the Flemington, N. J., trial just a year ago today.

Plans indefinite.

Dr. Condon said his plans were indefinite. The ship's destination is Valparaiso and Callao via the Panama Canal. He indicated that his daughter may stop for some time at Panama. The ship is scheduled to reach Panama on the 17th, the day Hauptmann was executed unless the board of pardons acts favorably upon his plea for clemency.

Dr. Condon last Sunday abandoned his plans to give several scheduled talks on crime suppression in a chain of theaters with the statement his motives had been misinterpreted. His failure to appear for a scheduled talk at a Bronx theater Sunday afternoon caused the manager to notify police.

Twenty-five clergymen of Plainfield, N. J., where he was scheduled to appear last Monday, passed a resolution last week, protesting against what they termed "exploitation of human tragedy."

Condon's departure precluded any possibility he might be called by the board of pardons. The defense has shown much interest in the activities of Lindbergh's intermediary in their efforts to save Hauptmann from the electric chair. Jafie was one of the state's principal witnesses and named Hauptmann as the man to whom he paid $50,000 in a vain effort to cover the Lindbergh baby, then dead.

STATE GRANTS CONDON
PERMISSION TO SAIL

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 10.—(AP)—Attorney-General David T. Wilentz said tonight Dr. John F. Condon, the Lindbergh ransom intermediary, had permission of the state to sail for Latin America.

Wilentz said Condon's daughter, Mrs. Mary Hacker, who sailed with him, telephoned him last week and asked if he had any objections to their making their usual winter cruise.

"I saw no reason then why they shouldn't do so," Wilentz said, "and I see no reason now."

PARDON BOARD TO HEAR
HAUPTMANN PLEA TODAY

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 10.—(AP)—The name of Dr. John F. Condon, who was brought sharply back into the Lindbergh kidnap case tonight on the eve of the New Jersey court of pardons hearing, was the subject of the celebrated "Jafie" recent magazine article on the case.

Manuscript important.

The governor himself president of the court of pardons, said he deemed the manuscript "highly important." But he said he did not know whether he would present the manuscript to the court.

Dr. Condon, a mystery figure in the Lindbergh case dating back to the early negotiations for the ransom of the baby, paid Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh $50,000 as ransom to "John," a man whom he identified at the Flemington trial as Hauptmann.

Sharing information with the Condon development today was the governor's announcement that a letter he received recently from a "J. J. Faulkner," protesting his conviction, was obtained and upheld by the appellate court.

Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the state police, who directed the police investigation of the case, said his men had never been able to trace "J. J. Faulkner." He said there was no direct evidence that the $2,500 ransom money deposited in the New York Federal Reserve bank on May 1, 1933, was made by "Faulkner."

The slip filled out by the man, he said, was for $2,500 and nearer the amount of the ransom bills than any other slip received that day.

Another slip, which was proposed to offer no objection to the defense move for clemency. He indicated his task was finished when the conviction was obtained and upheld by the appellate court.

A denial of clemency would leave three further legal courses open to the defense. They could go back to justice through the state supreme court, asking a new trial upon newly disclosed evidence.

They could apply to a federal judge for a writ of habeas corpus to determine whether Hauptmann's constitutional rights had been violated at his trial, and they could ask the United States Supreme Court to grant a writ of habeas corpus.

Attorney-General Wilentz was notified by Governor Hoffman late today that the state supreme court had denied the petition for a new trial.

Wilentz was also told to notify Colonel Schwarzkopf to attend the secret session.

The court consists of Governor Hoffman, Chancellor Luther A. Campbell and six lay members of the court, two of whom are lay judges.

A majority, including the governor's vote, is required for the granting of clemency.

Bruno Richard Hauptmann's request that he be allowed to appear before the court apparently was to be unfilled.

Governor Hoffman announced the court's session would be in the state house as usual. To hear Hauptmann, the court would have to go to the prison.

The governor's announcement left such a decision entirely with the court.

Visited by Wife.

Mrs. Anna Hauptmann visited her husband in his death cell during the afternoon after the verdict was announced. She was denied a personal appearance before the court. On leaving she said he was "in fine spirits." He inquired about his baby son, she said.

The court hearing will be secret and may require the entire day. A decision—possibly only one word ret against Longino and Ragdale was not known. It is possible they will back some other candidates whose names have not yet come into the light.

Will Run for Re-election LONGINO, RAGSDALE TO SEEK RE-ELECTION

In Longino's last race he was supported by Johnson, but since they began serving on the same board together, they have become bitter political enemies.

The minority leader has repeatedly accused Johnson of running the county for political benefit and with operating the county government on a budget balanced "on paper only." In his charges he was borne out by the July-August grand jury, but the November-December grand jury declared the county's affairs in a good shape.

Johnson made what he termed "indictable" charges against Longino before the July grand jury, but the minority leader was given a clean bill and later the November jury asserted that no commissioner has committed an illegal act.

No Reconciliation Seen.

It asked the current grand jury to attempt to effect a reconciliation between the majority and minority members, but with the primary for March 11, there seems to be little or no possibility of bringing Longino and Johnson together.

Thus it appears that Commissioner Johnson will throw the weight of his political influence behind opposition candidates.

Major P. T. Barrett is said to want the commission post. If he won, it would necessitate his resignation from city council, but as he could not take office on the county board until January he could still serve his term as mayor pro tem, which expires in January of 1937.

Barrett is Ragdale's probable concentrate his efforts against Ragdale, if he qualifies, and Thompson would fight Longino, it is believed.

The primary races for the two commission vacancies give one post to the highest vote winner and the other place to the second highest.

All incumbents will qualify to succeed themselves in the county offices.

Corbett, who will oppose Clerk Simmons, is a member of the Georgia Bar association, the Atlanta Bar association and the Lawyers' Club of Atlanta. Also he is a member of the Druid Hills Presbyterian church and is active in fraternal circles, being secretary of the Sardinia Chapter of Royal Arch Masons and chaplain of Eureka Council, Junior Order of American Mechanics.

He is a specialist in land titles and says that his thorough knowledge with the records of the county and the duties of the clerk of the superior court will qualify him for the position. He expects to announce his ticket within a few days.

COX, TARVER VOTE 'NO' ON VETS' BONUS BILL

State's Delegation Is 8 to 2 on Measure Sending Three Millions to Fulton.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Representatives Cox and Tarver were the only members of Georgia's delegation of ten in the house to vote against the soldiers' bonus bill which today passed the lower chamber by the overwhelming vote of 355 to 59. The entire state delegation voted eight in the affirmative and two in the negative.

It finally enacted into law, approximately 55,553 veterans now holding certificates in Georgia will receive $32,262,946, of which amount $3,400,412 will go to veterans of Atlanta and Fulton county, according to Representative Wright Patman, of Texas, leader of bonus forces in congress.

The total amount of money that will be received by ex-soldiers in Georgia will be paid to them after deducting all prior loans and interest before October 1, 1931.

Certificate holders in the larger counties of the state will be paid in the following amounts:

Banks, $105,663; Barrow, $135,046; Bartow, $278,312; Bibb, $338,987; Brooks, $232,283; Bulloch, $288,081; Burke, $318,249; Worth, $229,713; Whitfield, $226,599; Ware, $229,216; Polk, $273,780; Grady, $209,088; Decatur, $257,243; Colquitt, $338,472; Clinch, $148,143; Carroll, $373,262; and Tattnall, $167,825.

tions were reported by some of the senate bonus forces as offering no opposition to payment in bonds if they could obtain cash for the bonds on demand.

A bond plan, some senators said, would provide an inducement for veterans to keep the bonds and draw interest on them instead of cashing them at once, thus easing the burden on the treasury.

Police Puzzled in Death

HOOPER ASKS APOLOGY FOR ATTACK BY JACKS

Former President Declares Assertions About Laws Are Untruthful.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(P)—Former President Herbert Hoover tonight called for a public apology from the editor of the Interior for an imputation upon the constitutionality of laws passed during his administration.

Mr. Hoover lashed out sharply at his New Deal critics in a short telegram sent Secretary Hicks, calling attention to "an untruthful statement made by you at an address in Rochester, N. Y., before the Rochester City Club January 4."

"You said," under Mr. Hoover, "Congress passed laws which were held unconstitutional." Mr. Hoover declared.

"Not one of several acts of that period has been held unconstitutional. I never signed a law without bearing in mind the special obligation which rested upon the president to protect the constitution."

The former president imputed to Charles Michelson, in charge of publicity for the democratic party, and to the editor of the Rochester Evening Post, the publication of statements purportedly declaring that laws enacted during the Hoover administration had been invalidated by the supreme court.

JAPS MAY REVISE NAVAL PROPOSAL

LONDON, Jan. 10.—(P)—An apparent change of mind in Japanese quarters that they are preparing to spring a new proposal in order to obtain parity and save the international naval conference from foundering was disclosed today.

This varied from the widely held belief in other delegations that the Japanese would walk out of the conference next week.

In British official circles it was said that if the Tokyo delegation withdraws, Soviet Russia and Germany would take the case to the conference and it will proceed on a six-power basis.

Reconsider Demand.

The United States and Great Britain, it was stated, have agreed they will reconsider Japan's insistent demand for tonnage equality—but even the Japanese themselves held no hope it would be granted.

The conference is in recess until Monday and other delegations marked time amid a flurry of rumors, awaiting Japan's moves Monday.

It appeared certain the powers will give Japan the floor at the next meeting, which may be postponed until Tuesday to allow the pasters to expand fully their equality proposal or anything else they may have in mind.

If showdown is demanded on the proposal as it now stands it will be rejected, observers were agreed. Then, it was predicted, the Japanese will retire, leaving an observer to watch the situation.

Active Interest.

Members of some delegations, however, have noted recently that Matsuo Nagai, who represents civil Japan, has taken a more active interest than previously. This led to speculation that Japan's diplomacy may prevail in the end over Japanese admirals.

There are several considerations which might contribute to such a maneuver. Withdrawal by Japan might cause the British to withdraw.

1. A reorientation of British policy in the far east, possibly through a closer union with Soviet Russia.

2. The drawing closer of Britain and the United States in far eastern policy.

Secret Session.

Representatives of the dominions were called into session late today by Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, to discuss London's attitude if Japan withdraws. Strict secrecy surrounded the meeting, but an unconfirmed report said among the questions discussed was the inclusion of Germany and the Soviet in the parity.

Authoritative Japanese sources said the Japanese delegation was convinced that other powers had agreed

HOOPER ASKS APOLOGY FOR ATTACK BY JACKS

Former President Declares Assertions About Laws Are Untruthful.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(P)—Former President Herbert Hoover tonight called for a public apology from the editor of the Interior for an imputation upon the constitutionality of laws passed during his administration.

Mr. Hoover lashed out sharply at his New Deal critics in a short telegram sent Secretary Hicks, calling attention to "an untruthful statement made by you at an address in Rochester, N. Y., before the Rochester City Club January 4."

"You said," under Mr. Hoover, "Congress passed laws which were held unconstitutional." Mr. Hoover declared.

"Not one of several acts of that period has been held unconstitutional. I never signed a law without bearing in mind the special obligation which rested upon the president to protect the constitution."

The former president imputed to Charles Michelson, in charge of publicity for the democratic party, and to the editor of the Rochester Evening Post, the publication of statements purportedly declaring that laws enacted during the Hoover administration had been invalidated by the supreme court.

These $1,000 Holders Of Bonus May Get

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(P)—Here is what the bonus bill, passed Friday by the house, may mean to the holder of a $1,000 bonus certificate:

If the veteran has borrowed nothing against the certificate and wants cash, he would get $1,000.

If he has borrowed $500 against his certificate and wants the rest of its value now, he would get $500.

If he has borrowed nothing and allows the certificate to mature until January 1, 1945, he would receive about $1,253.

If he has borrowed $500 and allows the remainder to mature until 1940, he would receive about $567.50.

These figures are based on the figures on the basis of final bonus payment made by July 1. Earlier enactment would give the certificate-holder more.

The bill stipulates that if the veteran does not apply for cash before April 6, 1937—20 years after the United States entered the World War—the bill draw simple interest of 3 per cent annually on the face value of his certificate from the date of enactment.

The 3 per cent interest rate on maturing certificates would stop at the death of the veteran.

The bonus measure does the following:

Offers 3,000,000 ex-soldiers immediate and full cash payment on adjusted service certificates, minus loans against them;

Reduces interest due on loans against certificates, but does not refund interest already paid, as has been suggested.

A FLATTENED "BUG"

The capture by the county police of a large amount of paraphernalia in a raid on the headquarters of one of the local lottery rackets will flatten this particular "bug" for a time, but if this evil is to be eliminated, there must be many such raids—both within the city limits and in the suburbs.

The large daily "take" being mulcted from the public by the number rackets, and the size of the organizations engaged in these gambling schemes, is evidenced by the records and machines captured in this raid by the county police.

Not only were 20 slot machines taken and thousands of lottery tickets, a depot wagon and other automobiles for the transport of the solicitors and pay-off men, but three electric adding machines, made necessary evidently by the big business done by this single unit in the chain of "bug" organizations in the city.

For months solicitors for the number rackets have been boldly making their daily trips through both the business and residential sections of the city, while in the afternoon numerous automobiles thread the streets carrying thousands of dollars of cash with which to pay the "lucky" winners.

Some months ago the police department announced that a special squad had been assigned to the duty of rounding up the racketeers, but not for weeks has a major arrest been made.

The rackets are growing by leaps and bounds and the underworld leaders who are running them are growing more and more bold as their pockets are fattened with the revenue from the foolish "players" in the numbers game, who put up their money despite the heavy odds against their winning.

Certainly it would seem that with the exercise of even average diligence by the police the racketeers could be harried until they would, at least, be kept on the defensive.

It may not be possible to entirely eliminate this evil, but its recent rapid growth must be checked for the welfare of the city.

THE TRAFFIC PROBLEM

The automobile traffic problem, acute in Atlanta and practically every city in the United States, apparently is giving our British cousins equal concern, for we read that London police are advocating restricted areas in the central portion of England's capital, where only "essential" traffic will be permitted, and private cars excluded, to relieve the congestion of London streets. Opposition to the plan is being voiced by motorist organizations, automobile manufacturers and motorists themselves.

In all probability, such a drastic move will advance no farther than to develop some workable plan to relieve congested thoroughfares of their extra burden of traffic, a situation that confronts practically every city of the United States.

Swift-moving traffic is one method of relieving congestion, but swift-moving should not be confused with speed that amounts to dangerous driving in heavy traffic—displays of which may be observed any day and anywhere by the impatient "run-around" drivers who disdain remaining in a line of traffic which they consider is moving too slowly, even when it is traveling at a speed that is the maximum of safety to all concerned.

Desperate conditions sometimes develop desperate measures to remedy those conditions, and with the nation thoroughly aroused concerning the traffic problem, the National Safety Council is pressing its campaign for greater safety on the highways and streets in the hope that some method will be developed to control the thoughtless, reckless, careless, selfish element among motorists.

In proportion to the great number of motorists, this class is small, but their number is sufficiently large to cause most of the accidents, congest traffic, increase insurance rates and invest motoring with a hazard it should not possess.

THE NEW CITY CLERK

The selection of Joe L. Richardson as city clerk to succeed J. Henson Tatum, whose death occurred this week as the result of an explosion in his home, puts the duties of this important office in the municipal government in experienced and capable hands.

Mr. Richardson has served for more than four years as deputy clerk and before entering public service held responsible positions with several large Atlanta business concerns. He thus combines intimate knowledge of the duties he will be called on to discharge with a full acquaintance with the methods employed in the business world.

His unanimous selection by council for this responsible position testifies not only to his ability but to the faith in his character and devotion to duty that he has created as the result of the service he has rendered during the years he has been a valued assistant in the clerk's office.

HEADED WROG

The Georgia Crop Reporting Service, operated by the United States Department of Agriculture, in co-operation with the State College of Agriculture, states that the "estimated number of sows farrowing in the fall amounted to 87,000, as compared with 91,000 one year ago, while the number of pigs saved was placed at 478,000, against 494,000 in 1934."

These figures are for the entire state, and indicate that in some sections farmers are not keeping in line with the progress made in the Statesboro, Tifton and other south Georgia districts, where hog raising is becoming an important farm activity, necessitating monthly sales at Statesboro and resulting in the reopening of the packing plant at Tifton after it had been closed for a long period of years.

Georgia uses millions of pounds of pork products that come from northern states, and a very large percentage of it is consumed on the farms of the state. City and town residents may be excused for buying imported pork, inasmuch as the state does not produce enough to supply the demand, but there can be no excuse for farmers purchasing any pork product.

Every farm has ample acreage to pasture a few hogs while they are growing and sufficient land on which to grow corn to finish the porkers for slaughter. The old hazard of weather too warm for cooling carcasses after the slaughter has been removed by the chilling facilities of ice plants that are now located all over the state, where at small cost all danger of meat spoiling is eliminated.

Georgia can and should produce every pound of pork consumed in the state. We will start on our way to that prosperous period when every farmer produces all the pork he requires, for then it would not be long until there would be a surplus for city residents.

Federal men in Missouri trapped a bootlegger by disguising themselves as bushes. A dash of rose-water heights this amusing illusion.

New York is without antitoxins, thanks to racketeers. It might have been rubarb, but you never catch these fellows at anything public-spirited.

World's Window

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN
Europe in 1936.

ZURICH, Switzerland.—The year does not begin auspiciously. The European quarrel is far from settled. France is drilling. France faces internal difficulties. The British government is about to turn up new paths. The east is restless and the Japanese continue their slow, methodic conquest of the Asiatic mainland. That Mussolini will in all likelihood get his way in Africa and that Japan will add an enormous chunk to her empire in China, may rejoice the hearts of men who like to see "a strong Italy" and "a strong Japan," but it is bad precedent. What Italy demands today, Germany will demand tomorrow. Frustrated for the time being by the systems of alliances to extend her domination on the European continent, Germany casts her eyes to her former colonies and demands them back.

Since these colonies are for the most part in the hands of England and France, the governments of London and Paris will have to be doubly careful what they accord Italy in Africa. The more Mussolini gets, the more Hitler will demand. And Hitler's demands, let us not forget, will be backed up by the most perfect military machine that the world has ever seen. In two or three years' time that machine will be in order and ready to function. Germany will not be silent on that day. The year 1936 will be dominated by Germany's more and more insistent demands for the return of Kenya, East Africa, the Cameroons, Togoland and the islands in the Pacific.

One million men joined the unemployed in Germany in the few weeks because there are no raw materials left in the country to manufacture munitions. The reich is too poor to buy raw materials abroad. Hence, the reich will demand her colonies back where the necessary raw materials are available. That's logical—and dangerous. Dangerous because the reich will demand her colonies back where the necessary raw materials are available. That's logical—and dangerous. Dangerous because the reich will demand her colonies back where the necessary raw materials are available. That's logical—and dangerous.

And Asia Minor.

The various Moslem parties in Palestine have combined at last and are henceforth to pursue a joint policy against further Jewish immigration. Britain has countered with a proposal of a legislative council for the Holy Land. On the face of it this looks quite satisfactory. That the people of Palestine should acquire a great measure of autonomy and begin to participate in the direction of affairs in their own country is a happy evolution of the broad-minded British policy. But there is a powerful drawback. The Jews are still in a minority in Palestine and they will be outvoted. You say: Well that is natural, that is the unavoidable consequence of democratic procedure. But there is something else. The mandate was to have been made a homeland for the Jewish people, not only for the Jews in Palestine, but for the Jews of the whole world.

Every Jew in the world, in principle, is entitled to a say in what shall be done in Palestine. There are 14,000,000 Jews in this world. In that way, the Jews have the majority. The legislative council in the Holy Land is premature. The country is not ripe for it. It is not democratic procedure to give a vote to a minority of hopelessly ignorant Arabs, who are the plaything of their landlords and docile instruments in their hands. Britain is not rendering a service to democracy and to civilization in creating a legislative council in that country now.

France the Pivot.

For the moment there is tranquillity in France. But it is only the calm before the storm. In the spring, the elections and, according to all indications, there will be a tremendous victory of the left. That is to say, the parties of Herriot, Paul-Boncour, the social-democrats, and the communists will gain a majority. That's a foregone conclusion. Their first act would be to disband the league. Will those leagues submit? Or will they, as they have threatened, fight it out in the streets? There is the problem that faces France. The French show general nervousness. TODAY'S YESTERDAYS.

January 11, 1569.—The first lottery in England was drawn under the supervision of the clergy in St. Paul's cathedral, London. It was a happening of historic importance in this country, because the profits of the first English lotteries were used to finance the Virginia Company, which sent the first English settlers to these shores.

Seventy-five years ago today—Vassar Female College was incorporated. The first historic personage, just to see how Arliss will look in burnt cork.

Common Sense.

An anonymous 47-page pamphlet was published in Philadelphia in January, 1776, that was to have a decisive effect in American history. Titled "Common Sense" by its author, Thomas Paine, who had recently arrived from England, it urged the immediate declaration of independence from England by the colonies. Possession of it made any person liable to death, but its circulation through the colonies crystallized the sentiment which resulted in the Declaration adopted the following July 2.

As part of the works of Atheist Paine, it is reading matter that is excluded from many school libraries today.

Prepare for Peace.

Jan. 8, 1790.—President George Washington in 1790 sent a message to congress containing one of his most memorable lines. "To be prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserving peace."

Burglars, Beware!

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

BY PAUL MALLON.

WARNING WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—President Roosevelt has been looking the other way whenever anyone mentions the bonus. However, his thoughts have not gone unreported to congress. A horse official whisper was radiated through the house cloakroom the other day. It conveyed the idea that Mr. Roosevelt would veto any bonus bill carrying a cash payment. Also, that he would sign nothing beyond a baby bond payment of about $750. Furthermore, the thought of more taxes was more repugnant to him than the Fafnir bill, which he vetoed last year.

The whispering voice sounded very much like that of an eminent churchman who had talked with Mr. Roosevelt that day. At any rate, it was more than a good guess.

DRINKING The $50-a-plate cream of Washington society nearly curdled the other night. Ladies could not believe their eyes, even through their lorgnettes, when they noticed a waiter serve a bottle of wine to Mrs. Morris Sheppard and Mrs. Cordell Hull at the Jackson Day dinner. Mrs. Sheppard is the wife of the author of prohibition. Mrs. Hull is equally dry.

It was noticed that neither drank, but finally a waiter came up to Mrs. Sheppard with $9 change. Somewhat indignantly, she declined it, saying she had not ordered the wine. All went home amazed at the mystery.

If they ever find out that the well-known actor-politician, Eddie Dowling, paid $25 to a waiter to finance the practical joke, Mr. Dowling's acting and politicking days will be over.

QUESTION The most conservative diplomatic authorities here have received a confidential report that Japan has shipped large quantities of gunpowder and percussion caps into its mandated islands in the Pacific. They would like to know the reason why, but dare not ask.

Japan is bound by the collapsing Washington naval treaty not to fortify those islands. The treaty has a year yet to run before Tokyo's renunciation of it becomes effective.

WRITING It is safe to say Mr. Roosevelt did not refer to Mrs. Roosevelt when he made the Jackson Day reference to "some wise-cracking columnist."

The unreported fact is Mrs. Roosevelt's writings for the past few years have failed to please her editors. They have tried to get her to stop her articles and to say something. All would up by not renewing her contract. One mourned he could not get anything except material about children in the public parks.

Most people who come into direct contact with the first lady are captured by her charm. She is still a goddess to newsmen and even to her secretarial valets. The failure of her writings to reflect this personal magnetism undoubtedly accounts for the wide public misconception of her efforts.

BRITANNIA Britain is tilting her nose at the neutrality bill, but secretly likes it. Unintentionally, it will give her unchallenged authority over the waves.

Under it, the United States abandons its traditional policy of freedom of the seas and the right of a neutral to trade with belligerents. Also the President is authorized to withdraw protection of American nationals on the high seas.

That really means the United States will condone a British blockade anywhere. No other fleet except ours is strong enough to challenge hers.

NOTES The chairs of the nine supreme court justices have been appraised at $35 as second-hand material.

Congressman Hoepfel, of California, has absented himself from the floor of the house since his court conviction. He is following the precedents established by Langley and Zihlman, pending outcome of legal appeals.

Bruce Kremer, local democratic lawyer, sat next to Mr. Roosevelt at the Jackson Day dinner. The official explanation was that he was chairman of the dinner committee.

Father Coughlin told his friends confidentially that he might prefer Borah to Mr. Roosevelt in the presidential campaign. The Idaho senator comes nearer to the Coughlin silver and money ideas.

Just because I love you
You do the darndest things;
You make me believe that power
Of love that blindness brings.

You tease me and torment me,
You drive me 'most insane,
Some day I'm going to leave
You—
Then fall in love again.

Tragedy
Of a City.
"They used to call this the 'City of Trees.' I guess, since the ice storm a couple of weeks ago, they'll call it the 'City of Stumps.'"

Described
In One Sentence.
He was drunk. He begged for two dimes, saying he needed the money to buy another drink. I had no dimes to spare and told him so and he begged me to throw the point. But finally gave up.

So he approached the next man, whose heart must have been sore. "Can you throw me a point?" he asked. "I want to buy a drink, my friend, anyone would look at you twice, a brave man."

Hollywood Indicted.
Lead story in "The Era," published in London and described as the official organ of entertainment in England, in the issue of December 25 deals with the mystery death of Thelma Todd.

One clear fact emerges from the investigation of Thelma Todd's mysterious death. It is that Hollywood can't protect its women.

It is not only that they are threatened with death, injury, kidnapping, robbery and blackmail. The special menace to a woman in Hollywood is the ever-present risk of loss of reputation. Her good name is the sport of anyone's publicity dispatches, even of the company for whom she happens to be working.

The editor of The Era does not seem too friendly toward Hollywood, does he?

Premature Enthusiasm.
In Barnard, Mo., a bond issue to build a new schoolhouse was approved by the voters. So, enthusiastic, the town went ahead and tore down the old one.

Now, it develops, there was some secret work being done in conducting the bond election and it's all got to be done over again.

In the meantime, there's no schoolhouse at all and those children who like to play hockey are the most enthusiastic of the entire population.

This Is Mean Trick.
Some medical jokes have victimized the Henry Kohners, of Milwaukee.

On a recent day the following goods, none of which they had ordered, were delivered at their home:

A bunch of orchids.
Table and six chairs.
Dozens of other assorted packages.
Two tons of coal.

Everybody's out C. O. D. The Kohners finally got tired of the joke and asked police to find the alleged humorist.

Burglars,
Beware!
The police of Evanston caught a burglar, weighing 200 pounds.

FAIR ENOUGH

BY WESTBROOK PEOGLER.

Grand Old PARIS, Jan. 10.—The grand old man of the American colony in Paris is Laurence Vincent Benet, the manufacturer of machine guns, who has been in the machine gun business here for 50 years. He was born at West Point, N. Y., 72 years ago, received his education at Yale, emerging in 1884, and came to France the next year to join the Societe Hotchkiss et Compagnie, which produces the Hotchkiss guns.

He is covered with honors bestowed by various nations, including the Military Order of Christ, a Portuguese distinction, and all of the French decorations, with the single exception of the Order of Barflies, which is not really French, anyway, but Scotch, with headquarters at Harry's New York bar, in the Rue Daumesnil. Mr. Benet is believed to be the only American in the Order of Barflies, and this is a distinction in itself.

In 1898, Mr. Benet interrupted his residence in France to serve briefly as an ensign in the United States navy in the war with Spain, but he did not stay long, for his life was devoted to the machine gun business. He served with the American ambulance and hospital services in the war with Germany, and among others, many soldiers who have been shot by machine guns manufactured by his business rivals.

This service ended in August, 1917, and from September of that year until January 1918, he gave unstintingly of himself in the cause of God and democracy as a member of the advisory committee of the purchasing board of the A. E. F., which used many Hotchkiss guns.

Affairs. Mr. Benet wears a white whisker. In America, which impart a benevolent appearance to his face, and humane nature. He is always interested in the affairs of his native land. He went home for a visit a couple of years ago and on his return uttered some profound opinions of the state of affairs in America.

The American press of Paris always treats Mr. Benet with the deference, to say the least, of a man who has manufactured more machine guns than any other single individual, and it was reported that the grand old man of the American colony in Paris delivered his views with a "slow smile."

"The working class in the United States are showing a fine spirit," Mr. Benet said that day, "and are turning their backs on the communists. The machine gun business comes from only the small foreign element in America."

From this it will be seen that although Mr. Benet has found it preferable to live abroad for 50 years, his heart still beats true for the Red, White and Blue and the Home of the Brave and Free. He never lost his confidence in the good sense of the American working class. Mr. Benet is not of the working class himself, although it can hardly be denied that he has worked very hard for half a century improving the deadliness of Hotchkiss machine guns and increasing their popularity with the general staffs of the armies of the world.

Keeping Jobs Open. It is not all a mere matter of making speeches to chambers of commerce and accepting decorations from grateful governments, this business of manufacturing machine guns and more of them. It takes constant research and invention and constant hustling in a highly competitive market.

The ideal way to score Mr. Benet's success in life would be to record the number of men of various nationalities who have been killed, blinded or maimed by his machine guns in five decades of his conscientious endeavor, but such figures, unfortunately are not to be had.

The next best index then would be the reckoning of the profits, and there is a clue to Mr. Benet's ability in the French book on the munitions industry which states that his net profit in 1921 was more than twenty million francs, or about $1,320,000, on an amortized capital of only 10,000,000 francs.

Quoting from the company reports of Mr. Benet's firm for 1932, this year, it is a member of the syndicate of Hotchkiss guns, important orders had been obtained, the personnel of the firm had been augmented, the factory was working at full capacity and order books were sufficiently filled to promise a continuance of this satisfactory situation for a considerable time. Moreover, new outlets were foreseen in the not distant future. This was simply a reward of merit. Mr. Benet's firm has always striven to offer the best and deadliest machine gun for the least money.

Club Member. Mr. Benet's fine public spirit and his works of humanity are synonymous with his very name. He is a grand officer of the Legion of Honor, a member of the board of the American Chamber of Commerce in France, an officer of the Order of the Crown, a member of the American Geographical Association, the United States Naval Institute and the Yale Engineering Association.

Mr. Benet is interested in the colonial union for wounded men and has received a medal of reconnaissance of the duchess of Vendome. The machine gun firm was founded in France in 1867 by Benjamin Benet Hotchkiss, a native of Sharon, Conn., who found himself without a market when our Civil War closed.

The war of 1870 gave Mr. Hotchkiss his real start in France with a factory devoted to the production of cartridges. He died in 1885, the year that young Mr. Benet arrived to start his long and valuable career in the service of his fellow men. The climax occurred on his fifty-fifth anniversary in business, when in a touching ceremony, the employees of the machine gun factory presented to the grand old man of the American colony a life-sized portrait of himself.

Gadsden Purchase.

James Gadsden, the South Carolinian who was the first white man to cross the Florida peninsula from Atlantic to Gulf, made in 1853, the deal—the Gadsden purchase—that is the reason for his fame. It was a bad bargain. He paid Mexico $10,000,000 for territory south of the Gila river now included in Arizona. This was more than the United States paid 15 years later for a territory 2,000 times as valuable—Alaska.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad To His Red-Headed Daughter

BY ROBERT QUILLEN.

My dear Louise:
Of all the curious traits peculiar to our race, two of the most unlovely are the disposition to claim credit we do not deserve and the disposition to avoid blame that we do deserve.

These faults would be more amusing than shameful if we could be content to serve our own interests without injuring others, but we are seldom generous enough to do that.

When we try to avoid blame for some wrong we have done, we attempt to make our deception more convincing by fixing the blame on somebody else.

And when we claim credit for something we haven't done, of course we attempt to rob the person to whom the credit really belongs.

This claiming of unearned credit seems less hateful than the other trait, but sometimes I think it is meaner.

When a man employs a smart boy at less than his worth, and in later years, when the boy has won fame, boasts that he "made him what he is," the deceit is merely amusing. But it isn't at all funny when some person with authority steals credit for the work of an underling who can't protest. Many do it, and may they try for their sins.

That isn't the offense, however, which causes my anxiety. The one I would warn you against is its blood-brother, the sorry business of shifting blame.

You have often tried to dodge blame, as we all do. I suppose it is human nature to manufacture an alibi, and perhaps no great harm is done. But if you keep it up, you will soon be taking the next step and blaming somebody else.

There isn't much left of character when that happens. When a man blames his wife for his drinking, or a failure blames the poor training he received in youth, or a badly-soiled girl blames her partner in sin, weakness has found a comforting excuse and thereafter will be content to deceive itself instead of trying to do better.

Don't tell yourself fool you, dear. If there is an odor in your back yard, you will do nothing to remove the cause so long as you blame your neighbor's garbage.

Love,
DAD.

HEALTH TALKS

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY

In England good authorities regard cane sugar as equal and in many instances superior to fancier and more expensive sugars so often prescribed by credulous doctors in this country for the infants of credulous people.

The quaint notion that sugar or sweets caused decay of children's teeth is no longer seriously entertained by anyone who has any knowledge of nutrition.

Food or diet quacks in this country and abroad still have a lot of wisecracking customers fussing about the imaginary danger or objection to taking sugar or other sweets together with protein material. The gifted charlatans disseminate their own concocted notions that these two food materials cannot digest properly if taken mixed together or in the same meal; indeed they conjure up frightful pictures of dire chemical reactions between the carbohydrate and the protein with the generation of poisons of one sort or another from their own ignorance of physiology. It doesn't cramp the style of your self-constituted food or diet specialist a little bit, that sugar and protein naturally grows with protein in such items as mother's milk, wheat and the like. He is awfully enough to know his customers are uneducated—then he says, "If you are ignorant of physiology, it doesn't cramp the style of your self-constituted food or diet specialist a little bit, that sugar and protein naturally grows with protein in such items as mother's milk, wheat and the like. Aged Slave To Be Taken to Rest Near 'His Family' by Their Scions

"Uncle Joe" Dougherty's spirit will be proud on Sunday.

"Uncle Joe" was formerly a slave of the Jackson G. Brown family, renowned in Bibb county annals.

The only daughter of his former master married into the Kelley family, DeKalb county pioneers, and he followed in her service.

At 2:30 o'clock a simple ceremony will be held in Kelley's chapel, the family burial ground, and "Uncle Joe" will be laid to rest in a remote corner of the white burying ground.

When the War Between the States came, he enlisted in Humphrey's company at Macon and served through the conflict with distinction. The year following the close of the war, the only daughter of his former master, Mary Jane Brown, was married to James T. Kelley. Both of them were DeKalb county pioneers.

"Uncle Joe" was free but he elected to serve "his family." He made his home with Mr. and Mrs. Kelley and served them well and faithfully through the years.

"Uncle Joe" was a Christian and he emphasized principle and religion in rearing the eight children.

In late years "Uncle Joe" came to meditate considerably on what awaited after death and members of his family told him that the men of the Kelley family would serve as his pallbearers. This was a great comfort to the old negro and he died with that request upon his lips.

So Sunday "Uncle Joe" will be borne to his last resting place in honor on the shoulders of the men he had loved and served.

COLLEGE PARK COUNCIL RE-ELECTS OFFICIALS

All department heads of College Park were re-elected at a recent reorganization meeting of the city council. Mayor E. D. Barrett announced yesterday. Fred Shaefer was named mayor pro tem, and also head of the police committee.

R. W. Moore was re-elected chief of police for his 13th year; G. B. Lindsey, city clerk and treasurer, for his 17th year, and George P. Whitman, city attorney, for his 12th year. Other department heads are T. L. Mewborn, fire chief; George C. Dean, city recorder; O. L. Swiney, city superintendent; E. E. Wheeler, water superintendent, and J. R. Wiley, city electrician.

Chairmen of councilmanic committees are W. V. Flowers, finance; W.

E. Stilton, tax; T. O. Creel, streets and parks; J. A. Godby, utilities, and T. M. Kener, sanitary committee.

Major projects of College Park for the coming year will be its aid in the building of a joint disposal plant to serve the entire east side of the city, Mayor Barrett said.

SLEUTHS QUIZ MAN WITH BULLET IN LEG

Following his admittance to Grady hospital with a bullet wound in the right leg, Henry Bentley, 31, of a Woodall street, S. E., address, was questioned yesterday by detectives in connection with an attempted burglary early yesterday morning at the grocery store of John Harris, 92 Fair street, S. E.

Bentley was taken to the hospital when he came to police headquarters early yesterday morning and told police he had been shot in an attempted holdup on Fair street. His condition is not serious.

Lawyer, Detectives Richard Englebert and W. D. Denny revealed, they questioned the wounded man about the burglary attempt. In reporting the attempted burglary, Harris told detectives he fired several shots at two men who attempted to open the front door of his establishment. The men fled.

FAIN PEEK ELECTED

Succeeds George Yancey as Jaycee Secretary.

Fain Peek, widely-known young businessman of Atlanta and Houston, Texas, is the new secretary of the Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce, J. B. Crouch, president of the Jaycees, announced yesterday. He succeeds George B. Yancey, who resigned recently as secretary.

Peek is a brother of Duncan Peek, president of the junior chamber in 1933. He was educated in the public schools here and began his business career with the old Howard theater. Later he joined the publicity staff of a large motion picture corporation as assistant director of advertising in New York and New Jersey.

While in New York, Peek was active in social and business clubs, and in 1930 was selected as one of four Georgians to be hosts to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt at the annual dinner of the New York Georgian Club. In 1932 he was transferred to Houston to supervise advertising in that city.

NEW YORK SEC HEAD TURNS IN RESIGNATION

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Robert C. Page, head of the New York regional office of the Securities and Exchange Commission, has resigned, effective February 1, it was announced today.

He said his resignation from the SEC was motivated by a desire to return to private legal practice.

the stern and facing forward, must have seen it long before, and he demanded angrily.

"Why didn't you speak up? Want me to run into it, did you?"

"I thought we weren't speaking to each other any more," Kay told him in malicious amusement. "You were so glum!"

"All right, we're not!" he said angrily, and they came alongside.

When they were aboard, and the tender had been swung in over the rail—Kay tugged at a fall without suggestion from him—he uncovered the engine and after some difficulty started it. He left it idling and went forward to get the anchor up, and when it was clear of the mud, its weight all hanging on the chain, he came aft again, and let in the clutch, and with an eye on the compass set a course. He slowed the engine, dropped a loop around one spoke of the wheel, and went forward again to finish raising the anchor. Kay watched him with a secret smile, but she did not touch the wheel or interfere with his arrangements in the least degree.

He returned in a stony silence to take the wheel again, and once they were outside the cove, he changed their course to the southward. They plodded blindly through the fog, and Bob sat leaning forward, staring at nothing, glancing now and then at the compass. Kay beside him, only the wheel between them, kept her silence, too.

Outside Camden harbor they ran hard aground on a half-die ledge just then submerged; as Kay uttered an exclamation of furious anger. He went below to appraise the damage, came on deck again. Kay was whistling softly to herself at the fog.

He lowered the tender and turned to face her. "Well, are you coming?" he demanded.

"Oh, are you going somewhere?" Kay asked.

"Naturally," he said.

"Then of course I'm coming," Kay assured him. "Whether that goes, Bob?" She smiled and drew near, and he looked at the white duck trousers, the oilskin jacket she had worn against the fog.

"We'll change our clothes," he decided. "We'll go the rest of the way by land!"

And he went below and presently came up with his own bag. "Go get ready," he directed.

Ten minutes later, discreetly clad they were in the tender; and he began to row into the harbor, groping his way through the fog. He made arrangements for a local ship carpenter to fix the hole in the white duck trousers, the oilskin jacket she had worn against the fog.

"We'll change our clothes," he decided. "We'll go the rest of the way by land!"

She tugged at the wheel this way and that, and the "Lark" staggered under her unskilled handling.

"You need to be praised and approved of, Bob," she told him. "That's what I'm going to do to you—from now on till spring! As far as I'm concerned, everything you do is going to be wonderful!"

He asked in a sardonic tone, half amused, half angry: "Going to make a man out of me?"

"Going to make great surgeon out of you," she corrected. "You wait and see!"

He chuckled, then asked: "But why? Where do you get off? If you're not in love with me..."

She laughed. "You keep thinking that, don't you?" She sat nursing her knees with her elbows, staring into the blankness of the fog. She was a moment silent; went on, half to herself: "No, Bob, I snatched at the chance to marry you, to save myself."

She flashed one twinkling glance at him. "To save myself, not you, Bob?"

And she went on: "I think I'd have married anyone, almost that night. I was—foolishly desperate. But I'm all over that now. Only a few months, and I might as well be doing something useful during that time, don't you think?" Her eyes were mischievous.

He chuckled. "So you'll use the interval to reform me? And what then? After you've shaped me up to suit you, who'll you tackle next?"

Kay made a cheerful casual gesture. "Oh, I shall let you divorce me, and then I'll be back to Cay and marry Elmer Radford," she declared. "He's a fireman for the power company up there, climbs poles and cuts wires and fastens them together again, and he's adored me since he was a boy."

He grinned. "But why wait, if he's so charming?"

"I have to straighten you out first!"

He was still grinning, but he fell silent, looking straight ahead.

Kay saw his face settle by slow degrees into a sullen mask. She thought him amusingly like a sulking little boy; was not at all surprised when he shook his head angrily and rose.

"Sorry," he said. "Sorry I can't oblige. We'll go back to town, but I'm afraid you'll have to let me handle my own affairs. Come on. Let's go."

And he began without another word to gather their gear together.

Kay in an equal silence helped him, working in her own province while he rolled the blankets. When they descended to the water's edge, the tide had left the tender high and dry, and she lent a hand at the task of dragging it down to the boat. He ignored her, tugging at the bow of the little boat while Kay pushed and panted at the stern. When it was afloat, he left it with the bow in the mud and went up the bank for their belongings, and Kay at his heels carried her share of the load.

The fog was so thick that they had some difficulty in finding the Lark at her anchorage. Bob looked over his shoulder at last, and saw the little craft just ahead of them. Kay, in the stern and facing forward, must have seen it long before, and he demanded angrily.

"Why didn't you speak up? Want me to run into it, did you?"

"I thought we weren't speaking to each other any more," Kay told him in malicious amusement. "You were so glum!"

"All right, we're not!" he said angrily, and they came alongside.

When they were aboard, and the tender had been swung in over the rail—Kay tugged at a fall without suggestion from him—he uncovered the engine and after some difficulty started it. He left it idling and went forward to get the anchor up, and when it was clear of the mud, its weight all hanging on the chain, he came aft again, and let in the clutch, and with an eye on the compass set a course. He slowed the engine, dropped a loop around one spoke of the wheel, and went forward again to finish raising the anchor. Kay watched him with a secret smile, but she did not touch the wheel or interfere with his arrangements in the least degree.

He returned in a stony silence to take the wheel again, and once they were outside the cove, he changed their course to the southward. They plodded blindly through the fog, and Bob sat leaning forward, staring at nothing, glancing now and then at the compass. Kay beside him, only the wheel between them, kept her silence, too.

Outside Camden harbor they ran hard aground on a half-die ledge just then submerged; as Kay uttered an exclamation of furious anger. He went below to appraise the damage, came on deck again. Kay was whistling softly to herself at the fog.

He lowered the tender and turned to face her. "Well, are you coming?" he demanded.

"Oh, are you going somewhere?" Kay asked.

"Naturally," he said.

"Then of course I'm coming," Kay assured him. "Whether that goes, Bob?" She smiled and drew near, and he looked at the white duck trousers, the oilskin jacket she had worn against the fog.

"We'll change our clothes," he decided. "We'll go the rest of the way by land!"

And he went below and presently came up with his own bag. "Go get ready," he directed.

Ten minutes later, discreetly clad they were in the tender; and he began to row into the harbor, groping his way through the fog. He made arrangements for a local ship carpenter to fix the hole in the white duck trousers, the oilskin jacket she had worn against the fog.

GUARDIAN REQUESTED FOR J. H. TATUM'S SONS

Court To Be Asked To Approve Immediate Appointment.

Fulton county courts today will be asked to approve papers appointing guardians for Charles and Robley Tatum, sons of the late City Clerk and Mrs. J. Henson Tatum, it was announced yesterday by Walter A. Sims, former mayor and attorney for the estate.

Sims' announcement was made shortly after the burial of Mrs. Tatum, who died only 24 hours after final services were held for Tatum. Both were victims of an explosion last Saturday night at their home, 622 Murray Hill avenue.

Mayor Key also approved a council resolution extending sympathy and offering assistance to the bereaved boys. Meantime relations planned to ask for an administrator for the estate and for the appointment of a guardian in order that the two youngsters may continue their education. Both are students at Bass Junior High school.

The heroic efforts of the boys probably stayed the black hand of death when it swept through the modest Tatum home, according to doctors. If they had not rendered their stricken parents immediate succor, it is likely that both would have died in the room where the explosion took place.

Key also approved a resolution yesterday expressing sympathy to Councilman Frank Wilson, whose father, Robert L. Wilson, veteran railroad man, died recently.

Mrs. Tatum's funeral services were held at 2 o'clock yesterday from Spring Hill. Interment was beside her husband at Greenwood cemetery. Rev. H. O. Dunn and Rev. Hoke Shiffley officiated.

DEATH DATE SET FOR 2 GEORGIANS

Slayers Convicted at Dalton Face Execution January 24.

DALTON, Ga., Jan. 10.—(P)—Two men, convicted of murder here, today faced death in the electric chair on the same day—January 24.

Samuel Armstrong, first of the two to be sentenced, was convicted of the slaying of a hunting companion, Herman O'Donnell, near Ringgold, in November, 1934.

Terrill Loughbridge was convicted in the death of his father, Frank Loughbridge, on the night of December 8. The shooting occurred after officers arrived to question Terrill Loughbridge and other men in a robbery investigation. In the gun battle following, Sheriff J. F. Bryant was wounded so badly that the amputation of his left leg was necessary.

Execution of sentences on both men have been delayed by appeals.

Press Body Convened.

VICKSBURG, Miss., Jan. 10.—(P)—The state's newspapermen gathered here today for the business meeting of the Mississippi Press Association. Among the speakers scheduled for the three-day meeting are Governor-elect Hugh L. White and R. H. Pritchard, president of the National Editorial Association.

Do not fail to read it, and also see the offer how to secure photographs of screen and radio stars. If you ever want these pictures, now is the time, for they will not always be available.

2 AMERICUS CITIZENS SEEK CONGRESS POST

Castellow Doubts If He Will Run; Fort and Pace Announce.

AMERICUS, Ga., Jan. 10.—(P)—A spirited race for congress in the third Georgia district appeared certain today as Solicitor-General Hollis Fort and Stephen Pace, both of Americus, announced they would seek the post now held by Congressman B. T. Castellow.

Castellow, widely-traveled, scholarly man who went to congress in 1932, said recently he had not decided if he would offer for re-election. He is 50 years old, and an attorney. For many years he was solicitor-general of the Atlanta superior court circuit.

Fort, 50 years old and for many years an active figure in politics in this section, is solicitor-general of the southwestern circuit. Fort is 50 years old and for many years an active figure in politics in this section, is solicitor-general of the southwestern circuit.

Pace, also an attorney, and former state senator and former state representative in the Georgia legislature, was a candidate against Castellow in 1934.

Pace's announcement followed that of Fort by only a short time. He said his platform would include a plank pledging support to the Roosevelt administration.

Pace said voters of the district "want a representative in congress who will be a loyal supporter of the President." Pointing out he has "at all times given sympathetic and active support to the President," he said he would make formal announcement of his candidacy later.

"Some have advised me to stay quiet or go easy as to supporting the present administration," he said, "but it is my opinion that the President has and will always do everything he can for the general good and best interest of the people, and I shall not compromise that principle." Fort said that in response to inquiries from friends throughout the district, he was announcing that he would be a candidate. He said his formal announcement would be made "at the proper time." He said he had been urged by "numerous friends to seek the seat two years ago," but declined because he thought Mr. Castellow was entitled to a second term.

The solicitor-general is president of the Georgia-Florida professional baseball league, a sport in which he long has been an enthusiastic supporter. He is a graduate of Mercer University and began practicing law here in 1905.

Fort once served as private secretary to Dudley Hughes, former third district congressman. He served as referee in bankruptcy for six years, was in the legislature in 1927, when he obtained an appropriation facilitating development of the American Normal College, now Georgia Southern western college. He was offered the judgeship of the southwestern circuit four years ago, following the death of Z. A. Littlejohn, but declined. He is now completing his second term as solicitor-general. He took this office in 1929.

Pace is 44 years old. He has been practicing law here for more than 20 years. He was born and reared in Terrell county and moved to Americus in 1914.

He represented Sumter county in the state house of representatives for several years, and also served as state senator from this district in 1923-24. In the senate, he was chairman of the powerful rules committee. In the legislature he supported a state budget system, was author of the law establishing a state auditing department and securing an audit of state expenditures, and of legislation prohibiting sale of worthless stocks and bonds.

CASTELLOW DOUBTS IF HE WILL RUN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(P)—Representative Bryant T. Castellow, of Culbert, Ga., said today he was "still of the opinion I shall not be a candidate for re-election." "That," he said, "has been my purpose for quite a long time, as I have told my friends in the third district," he explained. "I feel like taking a rest for a while. I have been in public office for 38 years."

Castellow made the statement when informed Hollis Fort and Stephen Pace, both of Americus, announced they would be candidates in the third district.

SWAINSBORO EDITOR, D. D. BOATRIGHT, DIES

SWAINSBORO, Ga., Jan. 10.—(P)—Douglas D. Boatright, 32, managing editor of the Forest Blade since the death of his father, W. E. Boatright, last August, died today in a Dublin hospital following an emergency operation for appendicitis.

He had worked in his father's shop since he was a boy and for 12 years prior to the death of the elder Boatright was associate editor.

He is survived by his wife, the former Miss Lena Williams Wadley; two children, Douglas D. Boatright Jr., and Laura Estil, and three sisters, Mrs. H. M. Flanders, editor of the Soper News, and Mrs. O. P. Sasser and Mrs. W. R. Owens, both of August.

Funeral services will be held at the First Baptist church at 3 p. m. tomorrow, with Rev. C. S. Durden and Rev. J. M. Foster officiating. Burial will be in the city cemetery.

Psychology and Physic Aid Four-Ton Patient

AUGUSTA, Ga., Jan. 10.—(P)—A little bit of psychology, and a whole lot of medicine, apparently have won a battle for health for Augusta's largest pneumonia patient.

Alice, four-ton elephant of a show wintering here, was stricken ill during a recent cold wave. Doctors figured she needed more than the medicine they administered in huge doses. An old cotton warehouse, they decided, was not a very gay place for an elephant accustomed to swaying under a tent, admiring throngs around her.

So a "little big top" was erected. Alice was escorted into it, and her trainers vowed that she perked up at once.

Today Alice was reported definitely on the road to recovery—thanks to the psychology, and to generous injections of glucose into her blood stream.

STATE BRIEFS

PINES TO BE RE-SET. AMERICUS, Ga., Jan. 10.—A total of 140,000 seedling pines has been received here for use in connection with soil erosion work in the Muckalee valley project. These young trees will be planted immediately in various parts of the project and will form the basis for an important new timber crop here.

G. Dasher, assistant regional director of the service, announced arrival of trees.

ILA OFFICERS INSTALLED. ILLA, Ga., Jan. 10.—(P)—J. Rice Westbrook, recently elected mayor of Illa, took office this week. He succeeded D. R. Freeman.

Councilmen chosen at the same election were J. L. Westbrook, mayor pro tem; J. G. Rice, clerk; R. T. Fitzpatrick and Horace Bird.

Teachers Get Back Pay. QUITMAN, Ga., Jan. 10.—Quitman school teachers have just received salary checks for July 1935, which have been past due since that time. This completes all payments due them for 1935 and was made possible by the receipt of past due state funds recently.

Troup Registrars Named. LAGRANGE, Ga., Jan. 10.—(P)—Judge Lee Wyatt, of Coweta circuit superior court, today announced appointment of W. J. Albright, H. J. Miller and W. C. Hinson as the 1936 board of county registrars for Troup. They will begin work Monday to compile a voters' list for the primary scheduled January 28.

Troup Road Paving Planned. LAGRANGE, Ga., Jan. 10.—(P)—Assistant Engineer Jack Davis, of the State Highway Department, said today he had received blue prints and specifications for paving of state highway No. 1 from LAGRANGE. The project will complete paving of the route in Troup county. Final contracts are expected shortly, Davis said.

Tennessee Asphyxiated. AUGUSTA, Ga., Jan. 10.—(P)—A verdict of "accidental gas poisoning" was returned in the death of James Butler, 24, of Huntington, Tenn., who was asphyxiated while he slept here yesterday. Coroner R. A. Butler said he believed the lines became entangled in an unused gas jet in Butler's room and opened it.

JOHN RASKOB, DU PONT ACCUSED OF COLLUSION

'Fictitious Losses' in '29 Crash Charged in Brief Filed With Tax Appeals.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(P)—A formal accusation was lodged by the treasury today that Pierre S. duPont, of Delaware, and John J. Raskob, of New York, entered into an agreement in 1929 to establish "fictitious losses" on the stock market for income tax purposes.

Raskob is a former chairman of the democratic national committee, and duPont a member of the prominent Wilmington munitions and industrial family. Both have been active recently in the American Liberty league, a harsh critic of the New Deal.

In a brief filed with the board of tax appeals, replying to a suit by duPont protesting additional taxes, the treasury charged that duPont "entered into a plan, agreement and understanding" with Raskob in an "attempt to create fictitious losses for the purpose of understating their net taxable income respectively for the year 1929."

The government's answer, written by Herman Oliphant, treasury counsel, demanded duPont's taxes should be increased by $617,316 for 1929. Oliphant charged "fictitious" stock losses of $1,946,048, and asserted that $54,169 was unsupported as income.

For the year, the government reported that duPont deducted an "alleged loss" of $3,120,645, while Raskob sought to subtract $4,376,523. Raskob has had an appeal pending for some years, also, but the file was not available today at the Tax Appeal Board offices.

MISSING CAPITAL GIRL MAY BE IN GEORGIA. WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(P)—On the basis of a letter from a Georgia farmer, Washington police believed today they had located 15-year-old Alva Carmen Thyring, who has been missing from her home here since October.

C. B. Pryor, of Oliver, Ga., wrote that the girl was safe at his home and officers prepared to leave for the state to ascertain if the information is correct.

Pryor said he met the girl in a farmers' market at Savannah and that she told him at first her name was Mary Antonette Kent and her home in Silver Springs, Md.

She asked him to take her to Augusta, Ga., Pryor said, but he took her to his home.

FULGHUM IS EDITOR OF EXTENSION SERVICE. ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 10.—(P)—Ralph Fulghum has been named editor of the State Agricultural Extension Service here, succeeding Charles Summerour, resigned.

Fulghum graduated from the College of Agriculture here in 1929, served five years as assistant editor in Florida, at the Agricultural Extension Service and experiment station, and spent last year in the Washington office of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Summerour has accepted a position with a petrochemical concern in Montgomery, Alabama.

COMMERCIAL OFFICER, J. H. FLETCHER, DIES

COMMERCIAL, Ga., Jan. 10.—(P)—J. H. Fletcher, 48, Commercial light and water superintendent, died today of pneumonia.

He was with the Chickpeas Mills, at Gainesville, nine years and was a member of the Masonic lodge.

Surviving are his wife, two sons, Leroy and James Fletcher Jr., and one daughter, Mrs. Nelva Dickens, of Commerce.

Funeral services will be held at the First Baptist church tomorrow, with Dr. C. C. Cooke officiating. Burial will be in Marietta.

MOTORIST IS KILLED AT GEORGIA CROSSING

WAYCROSS, Ga., Jan. 10.—(P)—A motorist whose papers bore the name of P. W. Buchanan, of Spartanburg, S. C., was killed today in the collision of his machine and a southbound train (Dixieland) at Crawley crossing, 10 miles north of this city.

Officers said the victim apparently was connected with the Taylor Colquhoun Company, of Spartanburg.

SIX PASS EXAMINATION OF EMBALMERS' BOARD

State Senator R. E. Cannon, of Clayton, president of the Georgia State Board of Embalmers, announced yesterday that six applicants have passed their state board examinations. The board has been examining applicants for the past several days. Cannon said those passing were J. A. Miller, Brunswick; N. M. Lovell Jr., Columbus; T. L. Dickens, Valdosta; J. H. Hughes, Albany; George Scott, Valdosta, and Mabel L. Bell, Savannah.

Cannon said the entire class "made exceptionally high marks." Cannon said the group included two negroes, George Scott and Mabel Bell.

15 THEFTS CHARGED IN JURY INDICTMENTS

Mason, Gray Indicted; Jurors Complete Hearing on 53 Bills.

Seven persons whose names have figured in crime news in the last few days were indicted yesterday by the Fulton grand jury, which did more business in one day than many other grand juries complete in a week. Fifty-two true bills of indictment and one no-bill were returned after an all-day session.

Wayman W. Mason, 27, and H. J. Gray, 30, both of Birmingham, were named in 15 burglary bills in connection with a series of crimes in Atlanta in which more than $22,000 worth of loot was taken.

R. G. Bailey, alias Greer Connors, and J. T. Light, alias Austin Tokals, alias J. T. Warren, were indicted for possessing burglary tools, found in their baggage last week when county police arrested them here for Savannah officers. They are suspected of being members of a criminal gang which includes Joe Patterson and Jack Gamble, the two who are under indictment in the $3,900 W. T. Grant store bank messenger holdup.

Brewer Indicted. L. C. Brewer, who was shot by former Patrolman C. W. Mason last July, and who figured as a state witness in Maudlin's trial Wednesday and Thursday, was indicted for the robbery December 7 of Henry W. Lindley, of 300 Woodward avenue, who swore that Brewer held a pistol on him and took his $11 cash and a pocketbook. The jury returned a no-bill. Lindley was charged against Brewer. Maudlin was found not guilty of assault with intent to murder Brewer.

Marion F. Mills, said to be the operator for Walter C. W. Mason, was indicted for the robbery of the Home Lottery Company, and Hugh Spruill, an employee, were indicted yesterday for lottery offenses. Both were arrested Thursday afternoon at 87 Mobile avenue, where county police found 20 slot machines, two pistols, three electric adding machines and thousands of lottery tickets represents business done by the Home company. Ten others were named in true bills charging violation of the law against lotteries.

The capture and indictment of Mason and Gray is believed by police to clear up one of the biggest burglary rings in the state.

Mason Took Sole Blame. Mason professed to be the perpetrator of all the burglaries, but police said they found much of the stolen goods in Gray's home in Birmingham. Gray was arrested in Alabama city but Mason was placed under arrest here. He is held in the DeKalb county jail while Gray is in Fulton.

In addition to the charges against them in Fulton, they face the possibility of 16 indictments in DeKalb county, officers said.

Mason told officers that he pulled the jobs here alone. He said he dressed in a tuxedo when making his visits to homes and he questioned would say that he was a guest.

Only the homes of well known persons were entered by him. He declared he read the society columns of the newspapers carefully to see who was going out and then he went on trips. Then he would wait until late at night and ring the telephone in the residence of some one who was supposed to be absent. If no one answered, he would break into the house and carry away silver, clothing, rugs, jewelry and any other valuables he could lay his hands on. If his call was answered, he would say, "Wrong number, sorry."

Homes Ransacked. He and Gray were indicted for burglarizing the residences of Hugh Nunnally, 3300 Peachtree road; Frank B. Sites, 90 Wakefield drive; Mrs. J. J. Sullivan, 2489 Delwood drive; J. L. Hawerton, 115 Rock Springs road; H. W. Sandberg, 2734 Peachtree road; Fred H. Sorrow, 514 Pine tree drive; Hamilton Douglas, 512 Manor drive; W. F. Radbone, 937 East Delham road; T. O. T. 2499 Peachtree road; Julian R. Hirsberg, 2494 Peachtree road; Dr. H. Rawlins, 3437 Piedmont road; Mrs. J. J. Sullivan, 2489 Delwood drive; Charles P. Gardina, of 775 Sherwood road; Mrs. G. T. Phillips, of 820 Sherwood road, and R. G. Wilson, of 589 Sherwood road.

County Police Jack Carroll and John Carter, City Detectives Fred Battle and J. V. Cody, and Captain J. T. Dailley, of the DeKalb police, traced the two down and recovered thousands of dollars worth of the loot. Much of the silverware, discovered in Birmingham, and New Orleans and Chicago, had been melted and sold at bulk prices.

County officers continued their war against slot machines, with the arrest and indictment yesterday of James Goodson, who was named in a true bill which charged he had two slot machines in a filling station on Peachtree street.

Lottery Arrests Expected. Wholesale lottery arrests are expected as the result of the raid on 87 Mobile avenue, where Mills and Spruill were taken. Four men and two girls fled the house as officers searched the dwelling next door mistakenly. But police say they believe they know their identities. Names of workers for the Home company were contained on records and day books kept at the house and a number of writers and pickup men will be taken into custody as the result.

The grand jury brought to light some colorful names of negroes yesterday when they voted a true bill in a larceny case.

Henry Walker, a negro, and four companions were indicted. As the grand jury confessed it did not know the real names of the companions, it identified them by the only names it did know, which were "Rocking Chair," "Conk," "Red" and "Willie D." They were accused of taking $265 in cash from the house of Delphine Howard, 208 Linden street, N. E.

ATHENS WAR VETERAN DIES IN HOSPITAL HERE

State of Sao Paulo Resembles U. S. In Work, Cleanliness of Residents

Area Leads in Production of Cotton; Development Guided by Americans Who Fly Japanese Flag With State Emblem as Matter of Policy.

This is the 63d of a series of articles on South American travel by the Rev. Henry Edward Russell, of McDonough, Ga.—Editor's note.

JABOTICABAL, SAO PAULO, Brazil, Nov. 16.—Yesterday was the national holiday of Brazil. On November 15, 1888, the Empire of Brazil was proclaimed the Republic of the United States of Brazil.

The holiday of yesterday seems to be forgotten as the people return to work today. In the state of Sao Paulo one finds a different situation from that encountered elsewhere in the nation. This state more nearly approximates the United States than any part of this country that we have yet seen. The people walk with more spring in their step, they seem to be busier, more work is in progress and one feels inclined to say that their homes are cleaner and that the towns look more attractive.

Leading Cotton Producers. This is another section where they are interested in cotton. This state has made rapid advances in the cultivation of "white gold;" in fact, they have surpassed all their brothers and now hold first place in this nation in the production of cotton. As we found it in the north of the country so it is here, that one of it not the chief impetus for the rapid rise in the production of cotton is the capital that has come in from the outside. The house of Anderson, Clayton & Company is not the most imposing structure here for handling cotton, but it is easy to see that it surpasses all rivals in the matter of equipment. Again we find four units of 80-tooth bolls from the famous Cotton Gin Company of Columbus, Ga. efficiently arranged with a press from the same company that was made especially for this work. This press unlike the usual Brazilian variety turns out a bale in the 500-pound class. The gin building here is not near so attractive as the fine brick structures that we saw going up in the north of Brazil under the guidance of cotton men from Dixie.

American in Charge. Upon a little hill not far from the gin and press is the home of the American who is in charge of the work. The gin is not running now as it is cotton chopping time, but the concern is busy all the time as it is the business of the representatives here to see that a substantial profit is made on the money invested. A path that leads through a cotton patch brings you to the door of the American.

3 PERSONS INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

70-Year-Old Man Receives Broken Leg When Struck Down by Car.

A series of minor traffic accidents yesterday resulted in hospital treatment for three Atlantans.

J. H. Dishroom, 70, of 531 Holder street, S. W., suffered a broken right leg and shock yesterday morning when he was struck by an automobile at Lucile avenue, near Holder street.

He was taken to Grady hospital, where his condition last night was described as "fair." A. M. Kilpatrick, of 1523 Olympian way, alleged driver of the car, took the injured man to the hospital.

H. S. Sampson, of 339 Spring street, was cut and bruised about the face and body and was dismissed following treatment at Grady hospital after being injured yesterday morning at Washington and Rawson streets. The accident occurred when Sampson swerved to avoid striking another machine, he told police.

Running for a street car, O. W. Tindler, of 807 Federal terrace, was cut and bruised yesterday afternoon when he was struck at Five Points by an automobile allegedly driven by Mrs. Z. J. Sweet, of 25 Johnson road. He was dismissed after being treated at Grady hospital.

Three white men and a white woman leaped from their car and fled early yesterday afternoon when their automobile struck a machine driven by George Darrett, negro, of a Chestnut street address, at Ashby and Hunter streets, he reported to police. None was injured.

PEDESTRIAN INJURED ON EDGEWOOD AVENUE

John Davis, 57, negro, of 180 Cliff road, was seriously injured at 9 o'clock last night when he was struck by an automobile while crossing Edgewood avenue, near Piedmont avenue. He was admitted to Grady hospital, suffering from head injuries and a broken left leg. Otis Walker, 35, negro, of 350 Mitchell street, S. W., driver of the car, was charged with reckless driving.

FUNERAL RITES HELD FOR R. A. TOMLINSON

Funeral services for R. A. Tomlinson Sr., real estate operator for 15 years and a member of a pioneer of the state game and fish department, and M. D. Gleason, president of the Stone Mountain Chamber of Commerce, were the speakers.

Mr. Gleason said he has worked out a plan with the federal government whereby the government would pay part of the costs, providing $1,500 is raised in the county. Subscriptions are to be taken up at once and E. P. Johnson will act as treasurer. Several projected sites for the farm are under consideration. The following committee was named at yesterday's meeting:

J. Theodore Cobb, chairman; R. M. Whitten, C. T. Spruill, W. R. Nash, E. J. Newmyer, W. A. Smith, W. R. Watson and W. B. Griffin.

Fish Propagation Farm Asked in DeKalb County

A movement to establish a game and fish propagation farm in DeKalb county was launched yesterday at a meeting at the Decatur city hall under the sponsorship of the Decatur Civitan Club.

The meeting was presided over by Judge Frank Guess, president of the Civitan Club. Leila Wright, of the state game and fish department, and M. D. Gleason, president of the Stone Mountain Chamber of Commerce, were the speakers.

SEA HUNT PRESSED Final Effort Under Way To Find Lost Atlantian.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Jan. 10. (AP)—Two seaplanes, three coast guard cutters and a patrol boat were collaborating today in a final effort to find Paul Ackery, 37-year-old mariner, missing, with his dog on a 16-foot open sailing boat that left Carabelle for Tampa December 9.

The search is one of the most extensive ever conducted on Florida's west coast. Coast guard planes from the local air base have patrolled the route of Ackery's voyage almost daily for the last two weeks and pilots fear that he and his dog perished while battling heavy seas a few days after embarking on their trip.

Landing parties from the cutters Nemesis, Sauk and McLane were to search the swamp lands in the vicinity of St. Marks and Dickens bay in the hope Ackery may have come ashore in that desolate region.

BURIAL OF K. L. FLINN TO BE IN MUNICE, IND.

The body of K. L. Flinn, 30, of 516 East Ponce de Leon avenue, Decatur, who was killed in an automobile accident near Waycross early Thursday morning, will be taken to his native city, Munice, Ind., for funeral services and burial.

Flinn, who moved to Atlanta last March, was an accounting machine department manager for Remington-Rand, Inc. He was en route to Jacksonville on business when the accident occurred. Miss Ruby Lee, 28, of Waycross, also was killed in the accident.

Besides his wife, Flinn is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Flinn, and a brother, R. E. Flinn Jr., all of Munice. The body will be sent to Munice in charge of a Waycross undertaker.

It is estimated that there are approximately 25,000 Mohammedans in North America.

Apricots and peaches both originally came from China.

TARZAN AND THE LEOPARD MEN No. 12

Little Nkima, the monkey, saw the panther crouch. Nkima screamed a warning. Tarzan looked up to see the sleek beast hurtling toward Orondo. In a flash the ape-man flung out his arm and swept Orondo from the path of the black cat. The panther landed lightly on the ground, then turned on Tarzan.

The Jungle Lord clasped his hunting knife, and leaped toward the beast. Presently they were locked in mortal combat. Orondo looked on with awe, but without fear. For he was certain that his protector would fulfill his promise to conquer the savage beasts and ward off all danger of death from animals.

While the ape-man fought with his wonted skill, little Nkima screamed encouragement to Tarzan and safe defiance to the beast. "Sheeta cannot kill us. We kill Sheeta!" And if Orondo required further proof that the stranger was more than mortal, it was furnished by Tarzan's quick victory.

Tarzan pointed to the dead beast and said: "I will protect you from danger if you will serve me as I command." "I serve!" Orondo replied proudly. The ape-man nodded. He believed himself fortunate in acquiring this stalwart ally in his relentless battle against the mysterious Taloned Death!
